About the author

Marianne Snijdewind was born on April 22th 1984 in Nijmegen, the Netherlands. After graduating from the Dominicus College in 2002, she volunteered in a shelter for homeless women with children in Rome. When she came back, she enrolled in Humanistic Studies, from which she graduated in 2010 — combining the programs for Humanistic Counseling, and Worldview Studies and Research Methodology. She continued working for IVO Addiction Research Institute in Rotterdam, where she had also conducted research for her master thesis, assisting in research on homeless people, psychiatric patients, and lifestyle.

In 2011 she began working at the Academic Medical Center (AMC) in Amsterdam, section medical ethics in the department of general practice, on the research project second evaluation of the termination of life on request and assisted suicide (review procedures) act. After completion of this project, she commenced the evaluation study on the End-of-Life Clinic. During this period, she made a working visit at the End-of-Life Care Research Group of the Vrije Universiteit Brussel.

When the AMC and the VU University Medical Center (VUmc) announced their plans for future alliance, she started the research project on normalization of euthanasia and physician-assisted suicide — supported by both institutes to strengthen the partnership. At that moment she started working at VUmc as well, where she was welcomed in the End-of-Life Research group in the department of public and occupational health. During this time, she got the opportunity to visit the Centre for Death & Society at the University of Bath, for a working visit.

This thesis is the result of her research activities at both AMC and VUmc, now known as Amsterdam UMC.
